Dear Sir or Madam,

I am writing to formally transmit an international warning concerning serious institutional failures and systemic risks identified in Switzerland, as evidenced by the handling of the Crans-Montana tragedy of 31 December 2025, which resulted in 41 deaths and more than 115 injured.

This communication is not a request for intervention, but a formal notification and transmission of documented information, grounded exclusively in public facts, official records and recognised press investigations, and intended to allow independent international assessment within your respective mandate.

Purpose of this transmission

This transmission is made with regard to the implementation and effectiveness of the United Nations Convention against Corruption.

The attached and referenced documents raise serious concerns regarding:

- the effective independence of judicial authorities and the practical separation of powers in Switzerland,
- institutional inertia and procedural shortcomings in a case involving major loss of life,
- financial opacity, including the opaque funding of criminal bail, and the absence of enhanced due diligence,
- potential non-compliance with international AML/CFT standards and anti-corruption obligations,
- and the credibility of Swiss supervisory mechanisms in light of repeated international criticisms.

These concerns are documented and contextualised in the attached International Warning – Formal Notice, which has been independently timestamped to ensure integrity, traceability and prior existence.

Context of judicial independence

Beyond the Crans-Montana case itself, the documentation highlights a broader structural issue regarding the appearance and effectiveness of judicial independence in Switzerland, a matter that has been repeatedly raised by international monitoring bodies, including GRECO.

A publicly documented case involving a Federal Judge (SCHNEIDER) is referenced as an illustration of these systemic concerns, alongside a broader corpus of cases accessible via the public record.

Nature of this communication

This transmission is made:

- in the interest of international public order,
- without allegation of individual criminal liability,
- without political intent,
- and without expectation of immediate action,

but with the express purpose of ensuring that relevant international mechanisms are informed, should future reviews, evaluations or procedures require contextual or historical reference.

- Public reference page : <https://swisscorruption.info/crans-montana>

All materials are publicly accessible and verifiable.

Should your institution require clarification on the scope, documentation or legal framing of this transmission, I remain available for written clarification.

Thank you for your attention to this matter.

Yours faithfully,

Marc-Etienne Burdet
